

The Actuarial Society of Finland 100th anniversary 28 April 2022

Dear colleague!

100 years is a long period of time, isn't it? The Actuarial Society of Finland will celebrate its 100th anniversary next spring. We would appreciate you honouring this important event with us.

The Actuarial Society of Finland was founded in uncertain times. The country itself had become independent only a couple of years earlier, and there had been serious civil unrest after that. Finland was at that time a poor and underdeveloped country. The pandemic of those days was also still circulating in the country.

These 100 years have seen Finland developing into one of the advanced post-industrial states with a high level of education. Our profession has developed along the country and given a strong input into its highly developed social security and pension system. Finnish actuaries have also played a strong role in the international arena by, for example, organising the very successful ICA 1988.

Our celebration will take place on 28 April. We will start the celebration at noon with a seminar on professionalism. The languages of the seminar will be English and Finnish. In the evening we will have a Gala Dinner to celebrate our 100-year journey.

We are now happy to invite you to our celebrations next year. A more detailed program will reach you in due time, but please make sure to reserve the date already into your calendar. We will appreciate your response in due course and latest by 31 March.

Wishing to see you next year in Helsinki,

Actuarial Society of Finland
